Consumers Awareness in social science.

Introduction

Today we go to market and buy quantity of goods and small services in our day-to-day life for our family. The quality and price of goods and services are very important. But consumers are not aware of the rights and duties of consumers. This is the reason that consumers are not getting the best quality of goods and services.

History of the Consumer movement in India

There was no legal system in India to protect the consumers in their own interest. The consumer movement in India started in the year 1930. The first consumer organization was formed in the year 1930. The consumer movement in India is a result of the awareness of the consumers about their rights and duties.

Objective

- The objective of the report is to
- Understand the consumer movement in India
- Understand the rights and duties of consumers
- Understand the importance of consumer protection
- Understand the role of the government in consumer protection
- Understand the role of the consumer organizations
- Understand the role of the consumer activists

Conclusion

Consumer awareness is becoming increasingly important in our society. It is the responsibility of the government and the consumer organizations to create awareness among the consumers about their rights and duties. This will help the consumers to get the best quality of goods and services at a reasonable price.
