Report on Government Training and Survey under My Family My Responsibility

Date: 01/07/2020

The "My Family, My Responsibility" initiative was launched by the Government of India to combat the spread of COVID-19. It aimed to promote awareness, encourage responsible behavior, and conduct surveys at the household level to prevent the virus's transmission. The National Service Scheme (NSS), a platform for youth volunteering, played a critical role in executing this initiative. NSS volunteers were mobilized to engage communities, assist local authorities, and contribute to public health efforts. The primary objective of the campaign was to ensure that every household followed COVID-19 safety protocols, received health monitoring, and were informed about the symptoms, preventive measures, and government guidelines related to the pandemic. NSS volunteers were trained by government authorities. There were 12 NSS Volunteers had participated in the activity.

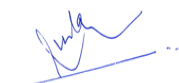

The "My Family, My Responsibility" campaign demonstrated the pivotal role that NSS volunteers can play in supporting government initiatives. Through training and active engagement, they contributed significantly to the fight against COVID-19, ensuring health awareness and safety protocols reached even the remotest households. This initiative strengthened the collaboration between the government and the public, empowering youth volunteers as frontline workers in managing the pandemic.
