Detail information of the programme:

The Department of Media and Communication Studies organized a special discussion session in honor of World Mental Health Day on 11th October 2023. The theme of this year's World Mental Health Day was "Mental Health is a Universal Human Right". On this occasion, Dr. Samiksha Sandhya Milind, psychiatrist was present as the chief guest for the event. The session mainly focused on the key topic "Today's youth and social media". "What is depression; how it is created and its effects on the students", were also discussed in the panel and explained to the students. The students were also made aware of "how to remove the stress that is created in daily life and also the remedial plans to be done for it". The students were given guidance on the events happening in the society; in the current situation about friendship, relationships that are being created because of the influence of online social platforms.

According to the World Health Organization, half of all mental health issues begin before the age of 14, however, the majority of incidents go unnoticed and untreated. Adolescents and young adults are one of the groups that frequently encounter challenges and also struggle to receive mental health care. If ignored, these mental health issues affect their day-to-day activities and their career in future while growing up. On this topic Dr. Samiksha advised students to understand depression; its causes and the far-reaching effects on students and families. With special emphasis on the profound impact of depression on a student's academic performance, social interaction and overall well-being, Dr. Sandhya Milind interacted with the students. She also addressed the challenges posed by social media, citing reasons for the increase in anxiety and depression among today's youth.

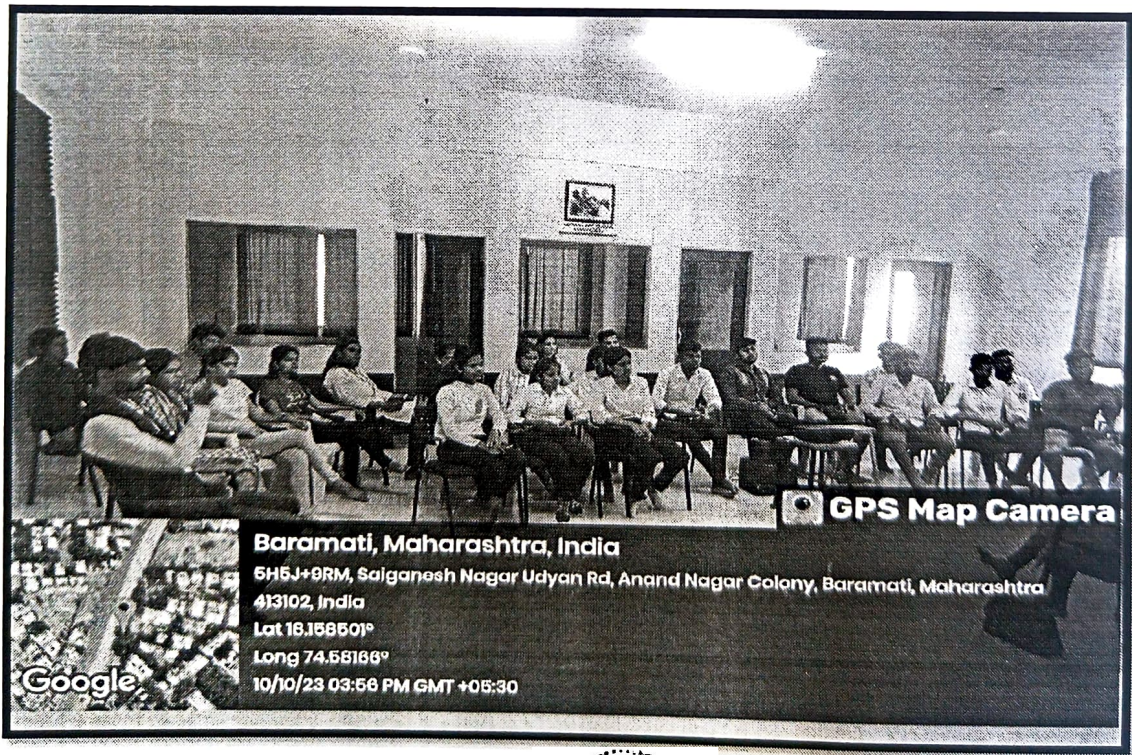

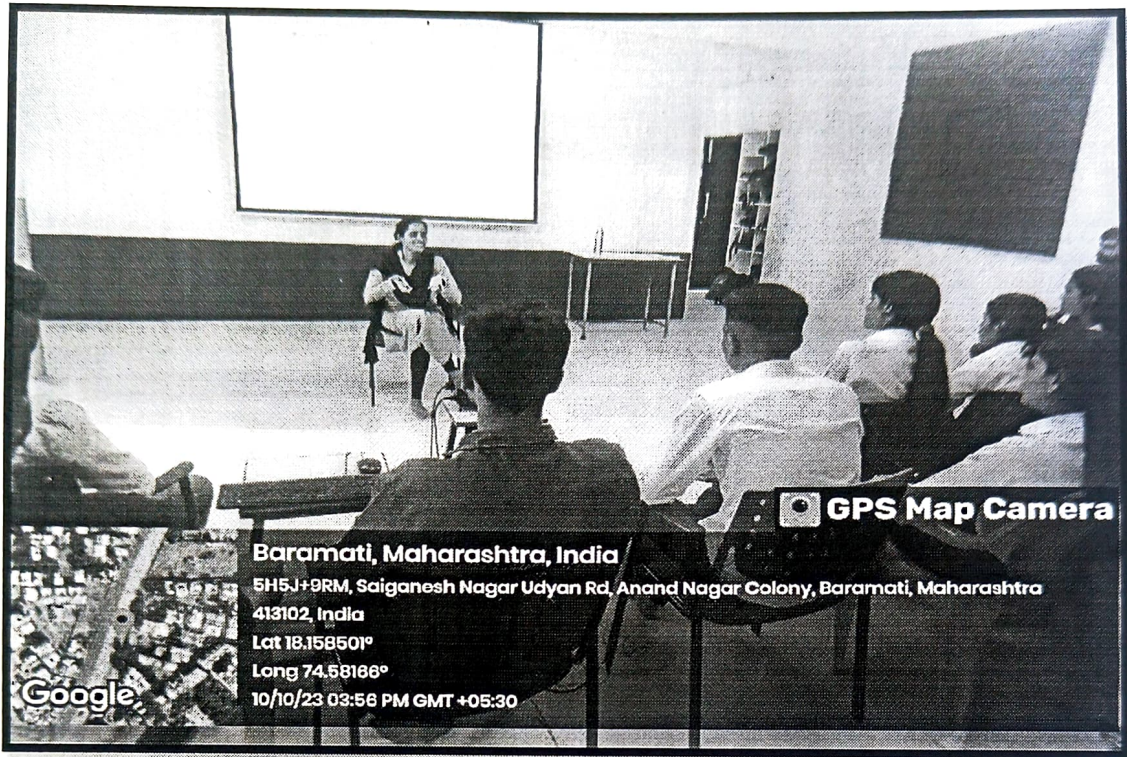

The session was concluded with a discussion on children facing various challenges including fear, stress and other relationships. Dr. Samiksha Sandhya Milind guided the students in open interaction by clarifying their queries raised by the students based on the problems experienced by them. Swarali Bidve, student of S.Y.B.Voc Journalism and Mass Communication gave the inaugural speech. Prof. Rahul Chaudhari, HoD of Media and Communication Studies department felicitated the ceremony. The session was conducted under the guidance of Prof. Rahul Chaudhari and Prof. Rutuja Agam for the department students.
